Date: 13th September

Venue: Department Seminar Hall

Topic: Career Guidance for Political Science Students

Guest Speaker: Mr. G. Srinivasa Rao, Lecturer in Political Science, Salur

Introduction

The Department of Political Science organized a guest lecture on ‘‘Career Guidance for Political Science Students’’ on 13th September. The session aimed to inform students about various career opportunities available after completing a degree in Political Science and to motivate them to set clear professional goals. The HOD of the Political Science Department Dr. P. Babjee gave introduction about Mr.G.Srinivasa Rao.

About the Speaker

Mr. G. Srinivasa Rao, an eminent lecturer in Political Science from Salur, has over a decade of teaching experience and a strong background in career mentoring. His insightful approach and practical knowledge have guided many students toward successful academic and professional pursuits.

Session Highlights

Mr. Rao began the session by discussing the significance of Political Science in modern society and its interdisciplinary nature. He emphasized how the subject opens pathways into diverse fields such as:

* Civil Services and other Government Examinations

* Journalism and Political Reporting

* Public Policy and Research Organizations

* Teaching and Higher Education

* Non-Governmental and International Organizations

He also shared valuable strategies for competitive exam preparation, including time management, current affairs reading habits, and the importance of analytical writing.

Throughout the session, students actively participated by asking questions about career paths, internships, and postgraduate options.

Interactive Session

The latter part of the lecture featured an interactive Q&A session where students discussed their aspirations and sought personalized advice from the guest. Mr. Rao provided motivational guidance and encouraged students to combine academic knowledge with real-world awareness.

Objectives

1. To create awareness among Political Science students about diverse career opportunities available after graduation.
2. To guide students on how to prepare for competitive examinations like UPSC, APPSC, and other government services.
3. To motivate students to pursue higher education and research in Political Science and related disciplines.
4. To help students understand the relevance of Political Science in public administration, journalism, and policy-making.
5. To provide a platform for students to interact with an experienced academic and seek personalized career advice.

Outcomes

1. Students gained clarity on various career options in both government and private sectors.
2. The session enhanced awareness about skill development, exam preparation strategies, and real-world applications of Political Science.
3. Students were motivated to set clear academic and professional goals aligned with their interests.
4. Participants actively engaged in the Q&A, improving their confidence and communication skills.
5. The lecture fostered a stronger connection between academic learning and career planning among Political Science students.

Conclusion

The session concluded with a vote of thanks by the Syed farha yasroon, appreciating Mr. G. Srinivasa Rao for his insightful talk and for inspiring students to explore various opportunities in Political Science. Dr.K.Sitamahalakshmi HOD, K.PBL.Saroja, CH. Ramarao, A.
